Annapolis, Md. March 11.—Unless provision is made at the extra session of Congress for perpetuation of a law passed in 1963, and which will expire next July, the number of youths who can be appointed thereafter to the tion Naval Academy will be reduced one-

Up to the time of the Spanish-American war there were only a few over 400 midshipmen at the academy. These were appointed by Representative Congress, one being named every congress, one boing named every four years from each congressional district. With the movement for expansion of the navy, after the war, there was passed in 1902 a law allowing each Representative two instead of one designation, and allowing each Sentor one designation, while the Pres-dent's quota of selections was raised ten to twenty. This schedule of oppointments, however, was only to operate for ten years, and that term will be the last one that will contain in the neighborhood of 300 youths. Next year less than 150 will be designated to take the entrance tests.
